Commencement of Disability Senior Practitioner

I would like to advise Professor Richard Bruggemann has started in his role as Disability Senior Practitioner in South Australia today.

This is a new position aimed at safeguarding and ensuring better protection for people living with disability.

The Senior Practitioner will work with the non-government and government services to look at how practices can be improved to ensure the rights of people living with disability are upheld.

Richard is well known and respected within the disability sector and is currently a Professor Fellow in Disability Studies at Flinders University, prior to this he was Chief Executive of the former Intellectual Disability Services Council Inc in South Australia for 22 years.

Richard has been appointed as the Senior Practitioner for the next 12 months.
